KEY TO PROSPERITY

The business men of Appomattox should never forget that the largest market for the products of American industry is to be found on the farms of the United States.

Every farmer is a potential buyer of the products of industry. There are a lot of them in this country, and if they get their share of the national income the effect of their spending is felt in every phase of business.

Therefore, a prosperous agriculture means a prosperous economic structure for the nation as a whole.

EISENHOWER ON STEEL TALKS

President Eisenhower has issued another warning on the talks between the steel industry and steel workers. It is evident that the President's latest warning is a serious one, reflecting determination on his part.

One of the reasons for the President's concern is the fact that gold has begun to drain out of the United States. This is almost unheard of in the United States, as far as recent years are concerned, and some people believe that it is because the price of goods in this country has risen so high that they have become priced out of the world market. Whatever the reason, it is true that gold is beginning to flow out of the United States, rather than accumulate here, and our trade balance is in reverse.

In short, we are buying more than we are selling, and this is an historical turn. In addition to this fear, President Eisenhower is worried about the cost of defense. The inflation which has constantly harassed Washington since World War II has caused the cost of defense hardware, and other defense expenditures, to increase enormously.

If these expenses continue to go up, our defense will become so expensive that we will be unable to compete with Russia. Moreover, further inflation, if too rapid, will undermine the value of the dollar to an alarming degree, and the government already finds itself having trouble borrowing money, and having to pay unusually high interest rates. Meanwhile, the taxpayer is saddled with a seven-billion dollar interest burden per year, just carrying the interest on the $280-billion national debt.

PER CAPITA USE OF MILK DOWN

The average American isn't using as much milk and milk products as he formerly did, reports A. J. Ortego, milk marketing specialist at VPI.

Per capita use of milk products from all sources last year was equivalent to 695 pounds. About 36 pounds of this came from government surplus stocks or was paid for by government funds, such as school lunch programs, Ortego reports.

This means that the per capita use from commercial sources was the lowest on record, although total use was up slightly because of the increase in population.

Per capita consumption of creamery butter tied an all-time low last year, while the consumption of all butter (both creamery and farm-dairy) also tied the record low.

Per capita consumption of creamery buteer from commercial sources last year was 6.9 pounds, the same as the record low of 1953, and 0.3 pounds below 1957. The use of all butter remained at the record low of 8.4 pounds per capita set in 1957. Even that average was maintained only by the increased use of government butter to offset the reduction from commercial sources.

There are a few bright spots in the otherwise drab report.

Consumption of American cheese from commercial sources increased 13% per person over 1957. Production showed a slight decrease, but sales to the government were considerably less than in 1957. Ice cream consumption also showed a slight per capita increase, but other dairy items showed losses or little change.

Another bright aspect of the report is the fact that sales to the government were below that of the pervious year in terms of milk equivalent.

Chevy pickup pulls through "bottomless" pastures to keep stock fed!
At the Hall Bros. Dairy Farm, Montgomery, Ala., they say this 4-wheel drive Chevy will go anywhere to keep stock fed—even through hub-deep muck that makes it a fight all the way. And yet after a full year of it—no mechanical trouble of any kind!
That Chevy pickup may not win any beauty awards (till it's cleaned up). But it's sure walking off with the top prize for dependability. And that's standard Chevrolet procedure. Put a Chevy truck to work and it keeps on working until you say quit. Not before.
We aren't claiming that every Chevrolet truck is turning out to be a miracle-worker and averaging 100,000 miles before a valve job. (Even though some are going 150,000!) You're sure to find, however, that you can't buy more truck dependability at any price. And that's borne out by the fact that more truck owners put their faith, and their payloads, in Chevrolets than in any other make.
Take your load and schedule figures to your Chevrolet dealer. He'll specify the best way to handle both and save in the bargain.
No job's too tough for a Chevrolet truck! CHEVROLET
Now's the time—see your local authorized Chevrolet dealer for a real truck buy!
